

Short Bio – Prof. Dr. Biliang Hu

Biliang Hu is Executive Dean of Belt and Road School, as well as the founder and Dean for Emerging Markets Institute (EMI) at Beijing Normal University, a professor of Economics of the University. Before his professorship, he was the Chief China Economist of SG Securities Asia, as well as the Chief Representative of the company in Beijing for four years in late 1990s; He also worked with the World Bank Beijing Office as an economist for three years in early 1990s. He used to teach Development Economics in the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences (CASS) as an economics professor as well.

His publications include Chinese Village, Global Market (with Tony Saich), New York: Palgrave Macmillan, 2012; China's New Deal: The Development of China's Economy Under the International Financial Crisis (co-editor), New York: Nova Science Pub Inc, 2011; Informal Institutions and Rural Development in China, London and New York: Routledge, 2007. His works won twice (in 1994 and 2006 respectively) Sun Yefang Economic Prize which is the highest economics research award in China, and he also won Zhang Peigang Development Economics Award in 2008.

He received his Doctorate of Economics from the School of Economics and Management, Witten/Herdecke University in Germany, Master of Science degree from a joint Master program between Dortmund University of Germany and Asian Institute of Technology (AIT) in Bangkok Thailand, and he also conducted a two and half years post-doc research program in the Kennedy School of Government of Harvard University. His main academic interests are development economics, and he is now focusing on the Belt and Road economics and emerging market economies.