

If anybody wishes to adopt the book “Whither the World: The Political Economy of the Future” for a course, please let know the publisher, Palgrave Macmillan at Rachel.Sangster@palgrave.com. They can make a discount code available for those students that will price the book at a similar price to a textbook, thereby making it available for students to purchase. Palgrave Macmillan just needs the name of the course, university and number of students involved.

It is worth my mentioning that the book is also included in Palgrave Macmillan digital collections which are sold to universities each year, so if any university or other organization is purchasing that collection (Palgrave Connect) then they and all of their students will have access to my two volumes.
